

Cudley's Training Program, Inc.

ome come from a place of limited opportunities with the dream of having a career in the healthcare field. Others yearn for a career change, or an opportunity to make a difference in someone's life. All of them leave with valuable skills to land jobs as home health aides and certified nurses' assistants. Mrs. Jairite

Anderson-Cole, founder and CEO of Cudley's Training Program is a Registered Nurse who also holds a Masters Degree from Teachers College/Columbia University. As an Executive Nurse she fully understands the philosophy of caring and is deeply connected with the needs of the homecare community. Throughout her career, Mrs. Anderson-Cole has been steadfast in her commitment to serving the needs of those who are less fortunate. She believes very strongly in providing the highest level of patient care and she instills this belief in each of her staff. Mrs. Anderson-Cole believes that this dedication to helping and caring for others is what sets Cudley's Training Program, Inc. apart from other programs. She states that "the future of home care will require a diligent, reliable team of individuals to help care for our growing elderly population. We at Cudley's accept the challenges to come."

The economic downturn has affected people in all walks of life. Many people never expected to be among the unemployed, let alone the homeless of our society. Cudley's Training Program is an example of how someone can turn an unfortunate situation into a chance to provide a better future for them. Aside from the financial reward of being employed in a stable field, obtaining valuable skills and the rewards of helping people who are sometimes in their most desperate time of need is immeasurable.

The United States Department of Labor expects job opportunities to be excellent because of rapid growth in home healthcare and high placement needs because of our aging population. They also state that many of these workers can work part time, weekends or evenings to suit the needs of their clients. In addition to rewarding careers helping people in their homes, jobs are also available in hospitals, extended care facilities, group homes, adult day care centers, and assisted living facilities for the elderly. Home Health Aides and Certified Nurses' Aides have also worked in summer camp programs for children with disabilities.

In the past, news reports sometimes depicted the negative attributes of a small number of people in the Home Health Aide industry. These stories, although true, portray the field in a negative light. For every frightening event regarding a Home Health Aide and/or an unscrupulous business owner in the news, there are hundreds of stories about dedicated workers taking care of our parents, grandparents and children.

Due to the vast changes in government sponsored public assistance programs, the recipients are now required to work in order to receive social services. One area that many women and now men are turning to is homecare training and nurses' aide training. The training program is short and obtaining a job is almost guaranteed. Ancillary staff in homecare, nursing homes, assisted living and hospitals are a great asset to the medical team. Due to the nursing shortage nationwide, ancillary staff can make the difference in supporting the goals of all healthcare environments. Participants will be trained to take care of the sick, elderly, disabled, children with disabilities, and the mentally ill. Training at Cudley's provides students with a comprehensive list of skills to handle many medical circumstances within their scope of practice including difficult behavior, Alzheimer's Care and end of life issues. Over the years, Mrs. Anderson-Cole has trained many HHA's and CNA's that have gone on to advanced training in nursing and other healthcare professions. The demand for nurses is high everywhere. Salaries are competitive and benefits are among the best offered in the healthcare industry. Nursing can also be practiced anywhere in the world. Many nursing specialties are also available such as caring for children, patients with special needs, working in the military or schools.

Although the New York State Budget is in need of reform, legislatures need to be mindful of cuts that can have a devastating effect on their constituents within their communities that need help as well as those who are gainfully employed in this area of healthcare. In closing, Sir Wilfred T. Gentrell stated, "The service we render to others is really the rent we pay for our room on this earth. It is obvious that man is himself a traveler; that the purpose of this world is not "to have and to hold" but "to give and serve." There can be no other meaning."
